Building or renovating a house?
Here's how to find the right

Architect

ARCHITECT:

David Jameson Architect

PROJECT:

BTR Residence

LOCATION:

Bethesda, Maryland

Each architect has an individual style, approach to design, and method of working. So it's important to find an architect who is compatible with your personal style and needs. To help in your search, follow these few steps to success.

Build a list of possibilities. Ask around. Find out who designed projects in your community that you like. Get recommendations from friends, relatives, and acquaintances who have worked with architects. Check to see if the architect is a member of the American Institute of Architects (AIA). Membership in the AIA means that the architect subscribes to a high professional purpose to advance standards of practice and service to society. This includes having a code of ethics and access to a variety of professional and technical resources.

Contact your local AIA chapter. Many have lists of member-owned firms that are interested in doing various types of projects. The most complete statewide list is published in this directory, but you can also search for firms on the internet at www.aia.org.

Call each firm on your list. Describe your project and ask the architects if they are available to accomplish it. If so, request literature that outlines the firm's qualifications and experience. If the office is unable to handle your project, ask if they can recommend another firm.

Interview each firm. Interviewing a firm gives you a chance to meet the people who will design your project and to learn if the chemistry between you is right. You may be working with your architect for a long time, so choose someone with whom you feel comfortable. Allow at least an hour for the interview, preferably at the architect's office where you can see where the work will be done. Some architects charge for the interview, so ask if there is a fee involved with the consultation.

Ask questions. How busy is the firm? Does it have the capacity to take on your work? Who will handle the job? Insist on meeting the person who will actually design your project. What is the firm's design philosophy? Talk about a project budget and the range of fees that the architect would anticipate for your project. Before you select an architect, ask to be taken to at least one completed project. Also ask for references from past clients. These are invaluable. In addition, you might want to obtain an Architect's Qualifications Statement (form B431) from the Virginia Society AIA offices. This standardized document may be used to verify an architect's credentials and other information prior to selecting an architect for a project.

Making the final cut. Unlike buying a new car or new appliance, you can't see the product and test it out. The architect provides a professional service, not a product. The right architect will be the one who can provide the judgment, technical expertise, and creative skills – at a reasonable cost – to help you realize a project that fits your practical needs as well as your dreams.

This brief introduction was excerpted from "Home Delivery," a guide to how an AIA architect can help you realize your dream home. Copies of the publication can be requested by calling the Virginia Society AIA at 804-644-3041.

Metal Roofing Panels

"SeaTurtle Cinemas, the anchor attraction at Berkeley Place, is a state-of-the-art movie house," said Michael Kronimus of KRA Inc., the project's architect. It is part of the "Towne Center" of shops, restaurants and offices featuring an expansive 33,000 sq. ft. metal roof from Petersen Aluminum. The forest green roof is an integral design element of this attractive complex.

Southern Roof and Wood Care installed 16" O.C., 24 ga. steel Snap-Clad™ Panels throughout the entire project.

PAC-CLAD® Panels are corrective-leveled during fabrication to provide superior panel flatness. Our PAC-CLAD® Kynar 500® finish, covered by a non-prorated 20 year warranty, is now available in 36 standard colors on steel and 34 standard colors on aluminum.

THE VIRGINIA CENTER FOR ARCHITECTURE INVITES THE PUBLIC TO EXPLORE THE POWER AND IMPORTANCE OF ARCHITECTURE THROUGH EXHIBITIONS, EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS, PUBLICATIONS, AND ITS RESTORED HISTORIC LANDMARK HOME.

Architecture, the most public and visible of the arts, speaks to Virginians daily, whether they know Thomas Jefferson was more than a statesman or simply appreciate the roof over their heads. And at the Virginia Center for Architecture, visitors can learn that a Founding Father designed the state's elegant Capitol, the South's first skyscraper rose above Richmond, and internationally acclaimed architects such as Frank Lloyd Wright, Philip Johnson, and Richard Neutra created Modern wonders here.

The Virginia Center for Architecture offers exhibitions and programs to engage visitors in considering the built environment that surrounds them. By presenting the best architecture of all eras, including promising designs for tomorrow, the Center for Architecture aims to nurture a society that distinguishes architecture from mere building and understands the value of well-designed places.

WHAT IS THE VIRGINIA CENTER FOR ARCHITECTURE?

2006 Design Awards

Thirteen projects by architects across the region were honored in 2006 with Awards for Excellence in Architecture.

Selected from a field of 161 submissions, the award winners varied widely from an inventive resurfacing of Richmond City Hall's exterior to a copper-clad museum at Historic Jamestowne known as the Archaearium. Selecting the award-winning projects was a panel of leading architects chaired by Marlon Blackwell, AIA, a professor at the University of Arkansas and principal of Marlon Blackwell Architects in Fayetteville. He was joined by Coleman Coker, a faculty member at Tulane University and principal of BuildingStudio in Memphis and New Orleans, and Timothy DeNoble, AIA, head of the Department of Architecture at the University of Arkansas.

13

Honor Award

Richmond City Hall Recladding
SMBW Architects

The ongoing degradation of Richmond City Hall's marble façade left little choice but to fix the problem. SMBW recommended removing the existing marble and replacing it with components made of stainless steel, painted aluminum, and granite. In the process, the design team redefined the tower's mass and scale. They also remodeled the rooftop observation deck with glass panels and a streamlined stainless steel canopy. "This was a building that had no sense of orientation, no sense of response to its environment, and no public face," the jury observed. "The architects took an anonymous building and gave it a presence. Now it has a new identity and a sense of dignity."

Owner: City of Richmond

Contractor: James G. Davis Construction Corp.

Corvasce/Goldstein Residence

Robert M. Gurney, FAIA, Architect

A mid-century modern house, originally designed by Clothiel Woodard Smith, was renovated and enlarged in this project. But the transformation is subtle. In the new scheme, a box-like form is added to announce the previously obscured entry, and the old carport is replaced with one that doesn't obscure the front door. Interior changes are more substantial, with a low-sloping ceiling in the living room replaced with a high ceiling and sheer walls of glass. Jurors admired the renovation architect's rigor. "It's a good interpretation of the original, and it begins to make some corrections to it," they said. "The changes make the house compositionally stronger, but maintain its spirit."

Owners: Antoinette Corvasce and Steve Goldstein

Contractor: Prill Construction

Merit Award

The Upper Room

Studio27 Architecture

Located in the upper room of a Washington, D.C., row house, this tiny apartment aspires to live large. Interior walls were removed to transform 650 square feet of cloistered space into a free-flowing master suite. Folds in the horizontal and vertical surfaces are rendered in wood and stone. They, in turn, embrace two glass enclosures – one containing the shower, the other a closet. In this environment, dressing and showering become the active events that cast silhouettes against translucent boxes. "What makes this work is that it took something that was spatially dumb, and made it rich," the jurors remarked. "It was done without a lot of new openings, but simply by how they articulated the space."

Owner: Greg Salvaggio

Contractor: HI Construction, Inc.

Merit Award

River Park Mutual Homes
Ritter Architects

Built in the 1960s, this housing complex in Washington, D.C., showcased modern aluminum wall systems and operable window sashes made by Reynolds Metals Company. Ritter Architects restored the building by designing custom aluminum extrusions to secure replacement panels; revitalizing the color panels; proposing a design standard for lighting fixtures, fan covers, and screen doors; and locating hardware for the original sash windows. "This is a type of preservation project that operates at the scale of the hand, the scale of inches," noted the jury. "They did a thorough study of the alternatives, and all of that is documented in a convincing way. It's both an analytical process and an artful process."

Owner: River Park Mutual Homes
Contractor: Universal Building Services

16

Merit Award

House on Spout Run
David Jameson Architect

The owners of this Arlington residence wanted to alter their home to make better connections with the site's natural features. The architect reconstituted the 1970s house on its original footprint, removed an awkward composition of roofs, and reordered the spaces inside. Carved into the steep site, a stucco-covered volume anchors the house while embracing the wood-and-glass core of the house. Floor levels were altered to create multi-story spaces that weave the surrounding forest canopy into the circulation and living spaces. Jurors praised the way the house relates to the site and the means used by the architect to capture new spaces. "It's an incredible transformation," they said.

Owners: David Harris and Elena Sterlin
Contractor: Added Dimensions, Inc.

Contractors: Carlton Abbott, Ron Vollmer, Van Kniest, Jack Kniest

House on Queens Creek Carlton Abbott and Partners

This is the last house built in a 40-year-old subdivision near Colonial Williamsburg. Set back from the street to align with adjacent houses, the residence rests at the edge of a 60-foot-high slope overlooking scenic Queens Creek. Elements such as building forms, wood shingles, clapboard siding, brick, wood fences, and small courtyards were composed to make this contemporary building respectful of its neighbors. "It has a historic quality handled in a contemporary way," the jury said. "And we like the way the architect took the clapboard and brought it inside the house, so it becomes a theme – but always as a kind of accent."

Owners: Carlton and Nancy Abbott

Merit Award

Charlcote Penthouse Renovation
Amestudio, Inc.

This commission called for the renovation of the unused penthouse in Charlcote House, built in Baltimore in 1912. Originally assigned as servants' quarters, the penthouse was redesigned for use by the family that now occupies the residence. Their wish list called for an art studio, play room, media lounge, kitchenette, office, fitness room, and guest bedroom. In the completed renovation, a skylight brings daylight into the center of the space. Instead of building walls, the architect divided individual spaces with well-crafted cabinetry. "There's a level of detail here that we don't often see," said an appreciative jury. "And there's clarity – very simple forms. It's a subtle addition and a great showplace."

Owner: Name withheld

Contractor: Winchester Construction Co., Inc.

Merit Award

Freddie Mac Bridge
Perkins + Will

Three buildings at Freddie Mac's headquarters in McLean are connected by this pedestrian bridge, which offers safe passage across busy Jones Branch Drive. Functional demands included the elimination of stairs or long ramps at each end of the bridge to improve accessibility. Other factors led to a decision to suspend the span from two concrete masts. A wire-mesh safety barrier provides a shimmer and lightness, much like a fabric. Jurors responded quickly to the bridge's attractiveness – contrasting it to many awful examples of pedestrian and vehicular bridges. "This could have been dreadful, standard issue, boilerplate. And it is making an earnest attempt to get beyond that."

Owner: Freddie Mac

Contractors: West*Group Construction, Corman Construction

Honor Award

Solar Decathlon House Virginia Tech Solar House Team

This house challenges preconceptions about solar technology and, in the process, derives new forms out of technical concerns. A light, expressive roof, for example, conceals solar panels; the heavy, service-laden north wall contrasts with translucent panels that cover the other façades; and the surrounding cedar deck creates a presence on the site that is unusual for a house based on industrial processes. "There is an artfulness to this," the jury agreed. "But every move is resolved or rationalized technically. Yet, at the same time, they never forget to demonstrate poetic qualities. So it isn't just soulless technology. They are really seeking a symbiosis between technology and art."

Owner: Virginia Tech
Contractor: Virginia Tech Solar Team

Merit Award

Suliman House
Studio27 Architecture

Based on traditional housing typologies of the Sudan, the Suliman House is conceived as a contemporary, single-family compound. Single rooms for various purposes – such as reception, living, eating, cooking, and sleeping – are arranged so that connection between each space is always possible, but also avoidable if necessary. The center of the one-story home is a double-height living room that opens on two sides to a courtyard. “This is something that extends the vernacular and has a relevance in the present day,” the jury observed. “That’s a good sign, because it is learning from both the urban and the environmental aspects of its culture. This has an authenticity about it.”

Owner: Suliman Alhag

Merit Award

Hargrave Residence
Robert M. Gurney, FAIA, Architect

Intersecting spatial volumes and a diverse palette of materials forge the identity of this house in Glen Echo, Maryland. The rectangular form, clad in mahogany, recalls a small house that was removed from the site. An elliptical shape, sheathed in lead-coated copper, announces the entrance and incorporates a dramatic curved stair. The glass-enclosed living/dining space offers visual connections to the landscape, while rich materials, such as mahogany cabinets and Brazilian cherry floors, create a lush interior. Jurors responded to the skillful composition of the house and its high level of finish. “And it produces a very handsome house,” they said. “There’s real skill here. Major skill.”

Owner: Ken Hargrave

Contractor: M.T. Puskar Construction Co.

Merit Award

The Archaearium at Historic Jamestowne
Carlton Abbott and Partners

Hallowed ground rests beneath the Archaearium, a new exhibition facility on Jamestown island. The building is situated in a "clean zone," meaning archaeological investigations were conducted, but that artifacts were not necessarily removed. A layout of known resources and historic foundations informed the locations of pile foundations. The building is wrapped in glass and copper, the latter material chosen as a sustainable alternative that will take on a patina appropriate to its historic locale. "From the ground up to the floor plan, it seems conceptually strong," the jury said. "There's also a clarity and a simplicity to it that doesn't get in the way of the historic context."

Calem-Rubin Residence
David Jameson Architect

Set in contrast to its suburban context, the Calem-Rubin Residence strives to mediate the scale and materials of a post-war neighborhood while satisfying the client's desire for a Modern house. In place of the brick Colonial that first occupied the site, the architect created a composition of Modern forms and timeless materials. In concept, the house's stucco walls wrap around a stone pavilion. Throughout the house, stone, wood, and metal elements are juxtaposed to call attention to handmade and industrial processes. "Compositionally, this house is very strong," the jury agreed. "The whole forecourt area is just really good. The scale feels good. And the spaces flow."

Robert L. Vickery, FAIA

Vickery (left) was a popular teacher at U.Va. and an accomplished architect.

Robert L. Vickery fell into school design “by accident,” as he says, but this particular specialization is a natural fit for an architect also known as a beloved educator. Vickery’s career-long dedication to both the practice of architecture and sharing knowledge with others through teaching is what makes him roundly admired by colleagues and former students alike. That dedication also made him the ideal recipient of the William C. Noland Medal, which he received last fall from the Virginia Society of the American Institute of Architects.

In addition to his activity as an architect and teacher, Vickery has written a handful of books on the profession, including three volumes titled Sharing Architecture, Anthrophysical Form, and The Meaning of the Lawn. He is the “V” in the award-winning firm VMDO Architects of Charlottesville, and even though he is retired he continues to consult for another local firm, Daggett and Grigg Architects.

To Vickery, the practice of architecture is about improving the quality of life for the building’s users. “I believe very strongly that architecture begins with human need,” he says. “Sometimes these needs are functional and sometimes these needs are symbolic. I think the architect has this unusual opportunity – if he thinks well and is dedicated to the path – to create a design that helps meet the need. And I think it’s extremely satisfying when that happens.”

Vickery came to Charlottesville from St. Louis in 1970 to co-chair the University of Virginia School of Architecture’s undergraduate program. He taught until 1997, retiring as professor emeritus. “I miss the interaction with the students considerably,” he says. “I miss watching students develop their own sense of aesthetics, their own sense of what they want to do, and being sort of a bystander. Participating in that experience is a wonderful thing.”

Vickery’s gift as a teacher is his greatest contribution to architecture, said former student Bob Moje, a VMDO principal. Vickery’s introductory course “Concepts of Architecture” is what formed the core beliefs that students have relied on for the whole of their careers, Moje says. By Vickery’s reckoning, that course touched nearly 3,000 students.

Six years after joining the U.Va. School of Architecture Vickery founded VMDO with three of his students, including Moje. “That was unheard of – that faculty would be practicing at all, because it was sort of frowned upon at the time,” says K. Edward Lay, a former U.Va. architecture professor. But that forward-thinking, multi-disciplinary approach is what gave him an edge. “He was a visionary – a person who was always before his time in everything he did,” Lay adds, noting that Vickery’s active practice invigorated his teaching by keeping him up to date.

Before he came to Virginia, Vickery was first licensed in Missouri, where he was a professor at Washington University in St. Louis. He also served as the Director of Campus Planning there.

Out of all of the buildings he has designed, Vickery says he is most proud of his work on Washington University’s Student Union and Performing Arts Center, which opened in 1972. At the time it was noteworthy as an entirely new building in a historic campus setting. He also takes pride in the design of Scottsville Elementary School in Albemarle County, winner of the Virginia Society AIA's Test of Time Award in 2005. "I think designing schools is extremely satisfying, because you can really see with opening day how excited the parents and children are moving into a renovated or new facility. It makes you feel good," he says.

VMDO's cylindrical library at Scottsville Elementary School became a signature work of Vickery's career in school design.

Over the years, VMDO has continued to specialize in design for educational institutions, and the mentorship of young architects that started with Vickery is still a tradition at the firm. "I think the greatest thing that I learned from Bob was his passion, his intensity, and his deep caring," Moje says. "Designing can be deeply personal, but it is the sharing of those deeply held passions that allows for meaningful collaboration."

For Vickery, he simply wants people to enjoy using the buildings he designed – and maybe even learn something from them. "I think some of the most important work I did was actually not in buildings per se, but in campus planning," he says. "I think we've built an awful lot of bad sites in this country, and here we are sitting in one of the most beautiful developments ever in site planning history, which is Thomas Jefferson's Lawn. It seems to me we should be learning from these examples."

Looking back on his prolific career as a teacher, designer, and writer, Vickery clearly has influenced many architects and leaves a legacy of thoughtful design. He's also a role model for how architects can enhance their work and that of others at the same time.

"If I had to tie it all together, I felt I couldn't teach well if I didn't practice. And I felt teaching helped me improve my practice. I'd like for my buildings to satisfy people but also to make them think a little bit," Vickery says. "I can say the same thing about teaching. I don't think it's so important to teach students what they must think, but it's important to teach them how to think."

The Architecture Medal for Virginia Service

As the Society's most prestigious public award, the Architecture Medal for Virginia Service honors an individual who has made an unusually significant contribution to Virginia's built environment or to public understanding and awareness of the manmade world.

John W. Braymer, Ph.D., Hon. AIA

John Braymer, Executive VP/CEO of the Virginia Society AIA since 1986, also serves as President and CEO of the Virginia Center for Architecture, a museum that opened to the public in April 2005. During the past 21 years of Braymer's leadership, the VSAIA has provided vastly expanded services to the region's architects. Braymer launched the Society's major continuing education event for architects and members of the construction community in 1988 with Building Virginia (now Architecture Exchange), and in 1988 laid plans for the 1990 launch of Inform, now a leader among regional architecture and design magazines. Braymer has also worked with Virginia's governors and General Assembly to strengthen professional registration laws, building codes, and tort and statute of limitation laws as they apply to the practice of architecture.

In 1987, newly appointed as CEO of the Virginia Foundation for Architecture, Braymer organized and managed the effort to undertake renovation of the Foundation's and the Society's home at the historic Barret House. In 2000, Braymer introduced trustees to the opportunity to acquire the historic Branch House, a national, state, and local historic landmark, designed by architect John Russell Pope and built in 1919. Braymer managed the building's acquisition and renovation as well as its transition into the Virginia Center for Architecture, a unique cultural institution dedicated to architecture.

Braymer, who has a Ph.D. in English literature and was assistant professor at the University of Richmond, is a past president of the AIA's Council of Architectural Component Executives, which awarded him its highest honor in 2004. He has also served as a director on the AIA national board and has been named both an Honorary Member of the AIA and a Richard Upjohn Fellow. In the Richmond community, Braymer is chair of the Virginia League of Planned Parenthood and a member of the Richmond Symphony Orchestra board. In 2004, Governor Mark Warner appointed Braymer to the Virginia Board of Historic Resources, and he also is Treasurer of the Center for Palladian Studies in America.

Distinguished Achievement Award

Charles Matta, FAIA

Matta, founder and former principal of the Matta Architect firm and now Director of the Center for Federal Buildings & Modernizations at the U.S. General Services Administration (GSA), has had a significant impact on the practice of his fellow architects in the federal sector. A Design Excellence Advocate and National Peer Review architect at the GSA, Matta also established the AIA Continuing Education System initiative at the GSA and co-developed building commissioning for GSA's Public Buildings Service, the largest developer of federal real estate.

Alan Morledge, AIA

Morledge is a historic preservationist whose contributions to Virginia architecture span more than four decades. During a 20-year career with Colonial Williamsburg, he served on the Long-Range Planning Committee that established the early vision for Colonial Williamsburg still being pursued today. Morledge's total historic project work numbers in the hundreds, and he led a blue-ribbon restoration team for historic Blandfield, one of the largest and most significant Georgian houses still standing in Virginia. His work continues today with an ongoing Historic Structures report for the circa-1680 Adam Thoroughgood House in Virginia Beach and with service on several historic building advisory boards

Sharon Park, FAIA

Until July 2007, Park served as the Senior Historical Architect for the Heritage Preservation Services Division of the National Park Service (NPS) and also served as Chief of the Technical Preservation Services Branch. She was responsible for the management of the Historic Rehabilitation Tax Credit Program and the educational programs and publications that present best practices of preserving historic buildings from both a materials and design standpoint. She is well-versed in design issues of historic preservation and how to incorporate often conflicting requirements into historic buildings. In 2007, Park departed the NPS after 27 years of service to become the chief of architectural history and historic preservation at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C.

Society Honors

Barbara S. Page, ASID

Page is an interior designer with Norfolk's Hanbury Evans Wright Vlattas + Company whose expertise lies in period and historic interiors. She was instrumental in the renovation and adaptation of the Branch House into the Virginia Center for Architecture, which was awarded the Gabriella Page Historic Preservation Award from APVA Preservation Virginia. Other historic properties in whose restoration Page has been instrumental include Alexander Parris's Virginia Executive Mansion, A.J. Davis's Superintendent's Quarters at VMI, and the Beaux Arts Wells Theatre in Norfolk.

Jack Horn

Horn is the founder and chair of Martin Horn, Inc., a general contracting firm based in Charlottesville. The company has completed a wide assortment of projects ranging from student housing to commercial office buildings, banks, hotels, and private homes. The firm began as Edward Van Lear Construction in 1947 and was renamed in 1979 upon the formation of Horn's partnership with Warren Martin, president of Van Lear. Today Martin Horn's annual volume is more than $40 million, and its portfolio includes such projects as the University of Virginia law school expansion, Klockner Stadium at U.Va., and the Thomas Jefferson Library at Kenwood.

FIRST

If you are trying to locate architects in a particular area, but don't know the firm by name, look in the index that begins on page 72. That is organized by city and town.

SECOND

If you know the name of the firm you are trying to locate, simply thumb through the following pages and find the name listed alphabetically in the directory.

THIRD

Here's what you will find under the firm listing.

● Name, address, and phone number.

● Principals and firm personnel

If you want to talk about a possible commission, ask for the person listed as "client contact." If you want to talk to the firm about using a new product or service, ask for the person listed as "vendor contact." In smaller firms, these contacts will be the same person.

● Principal areas of practice

While architects pride themselves on being generalists, many firms develop particular strengths over the years. This listing includes the four most important areas of a firm's practice, though other project types aren't necessarily excluded from the range of work a firm is qualified to do.

● Recent projects

We have limited each firm to naming no more than five of their recent completed buildings. Take note: Many of the buildings may have been recognized for design excellence or other attributes. If you are considering hiring this firm, go take a look at some of the buildings first and ask the building owners about their level of satisfaction with the results.

LAST

A few words about this directory. Contained here are the architecture firms that have a member of the Virginia Society AIA as a principal. There may be other principals and employees at the firm whose names are not listed. The information published here is provided by the firms and we assume it to be accurate, but you may wish to verify data on a particular firm by calling directly to inquire.

When AIA Contract Documents are in force, everyone's interests are in balance.

AIA Contract Documents were created from a consensus of contractors, developers, lawyers, and architects to balance the interests of all parties. No standard contract documents keep projects running and finishing as successfully.

- Cover all project phases.
- Paper or electronic form.
- Flexible pricing.
- Full Microsoft® Word functionality.
- Improved navigational aids.
- Formatting and collaboration options.

To learn more or to download the software, go to www.aia.org or call 1-800-365-2724.
